Hon. George Edwards Makes Reply to Statements of Hon. J. R. McDowell

SALTY REPLY IN WHICH HE CHALLENGES THE WORLD TO REVIEW HIS RECORD AS A PUBLIC OFFICIAL, AND FIND AUGHT TO CONDEMN.

McCool, Miss., July 15, 1915.—To the Public: My opponent, Mr. James R. McDowell, has issued a circular in which there are so many false statements about me, and so much mudslinging, that I deem it necessary, however distasteful it may be to me, to answer some of these untruthful statements.

He says, in his pamphlet, in effect, that I have held office for twenty years. He knows that is untrue, and everybody else knows it, too. The only public offices I ever held were State Treasurer for four years and Railroad Commissioner for four years. I was John Sharp Williams' private secretary and stenographer, but these positions are not public offices, and nobody knows this any better than Mr. McDowell, because he was Gov. Longino's private secretary and stenographer.

In another place he uses the following language: "But I want to ask if it was right that the Railroads should pay more taxes in 1914, why royal sign of distress of a secret causer who is trying to line up his gang with him and at the same time fool the common people of Mississippi who believe in honest men in office and clean, honest politics.

After what I have said above, the people will not wonder that the railroads selected this sort of a man as their candidate for Railroad Commissioner.

Mr. McDowell says the Legislature paid the $400 lawyer's fee in the bond litigation. I paid the fee myself out of my own hard-earned savings and about a year after that the Legislature returned the money to me, taking the view, as they did, that the Attorney General should have represented me in that case.

Mr. McDowell says further: "If the present Commissioners are competent, and have the people's interests at heart, why it is that they pass so many orders, which the Supreme Court condemns?"

The Supreme Court of Mississippi has never, so far as I have been able to learn, condemned or turned down a single order of the present Railroad Commission, excepting the back tax assessment of the Western Union Telegraph Co., which order was made, on the advice of the Attorney General, and in this case, the Court simply decided that the Commission could not assess back taxes, except on the request of the Revenue Agent.

Mr. McDowell's chief argument why he should be elected Railroad Commissioner is that he is a lawyer. If he was very much of a lawyer, don't you think it strange that he would be out here running for a little job like Railroad Commissioner? But the Railroad Commission already has a lawyer. The law makes the Second Assistant Attorney General the attorney for the Railroad Commission. Mr. McDowell knows this, because he introduced the bill creating this place, and after the secret caucus adjourned, Mr. McDowell resigned his seat in the State Senate, and was appointed Assistant Attorney General. As he was a member of the Legislature which created the office of Second Assistant Attorney General, it would have been illegal for him to hold that office, so he was appointed First Assistant Attorney General, and so Mr. McDowell "got his'n."

I regret very much that it has been necessary for me to contradict these false statements, but I have felt that any failure upon my part to contradict them might be regarded by my friends as an admission of their truthfulness.

President Markham, of the Illinois Central, and the Jackson Daily News are doing and saying everything they know how to defeat me, because I made the Railroads and other public service corporations pay their taxes just like other people have to pay theirs—in other words, because I have been true to the people.

But the misrepresentations and villifications of me by the Jackson Daily News and Markham, McDowell & Co., will profit them nothing, and the people will see to it that a faithful, fearless public servant will receive the stamp of their approval.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE R. EDWARDS.

ICE CREAM

Often the Carrier of Dangerous Disease Germs.

Ice creams are artificially frozen dishes of comparatively recent origin. The term "ice cream" is used in this country to cover a large variety of products containing either milk or cream with sundry flavoring substances. It is often made of the very poorest quality of cream or milk to be found on the market. It is crowded with bacteria. Investigations conducted in many towns have shown that the ice cream as sold to the customer often contains millions of bacteria.

Further, the ice cream is often made in cellars or other insanitary places and is generally handled with great lack of cleanliness. Freezing does not kill the bacteria in milk or cream. Ice cream has proven to carry infections, such as typhoid fever. If tubercle bacilli (consumption germs) are in the ice cream they are probably quite as active as they were before the freezing process. Ice cream is sometimes kept a long time before it is sold, and sometimes it is re-frozen after it has been handled and exposed. There are many other indictments which the sanitarian could draw up again ice cream, including impure flavoring and coloring matters, and sophistication of various kinds. Wherever the industry has been investigated it has been found full of abuses and faults.

Reference, Rosenau, "The Milk Question."

Note: The object is to enlighten, not to frighten. As we look around us we see many insanitary—even dirty places—where foods—fruits, milks and ice creams are sold. It does not take the trained and experienced sanitarian to detect these places. You certainly can tell a dirty, filthy place when you see it daily. You should be able to judge the inside of the place insanitary, when slops, garbages and refuse are daily emptied at the rear, where flies swarm around the doors. These are good detectives. Watch them, they can locate the filth.

About "Losing Ground."

According to three or four State papers Bilbo continues to "lose ground." It is also apparent that Brewer is losing ground. His friends combed Pearl River County with a finetooth comb and could only secure one hundred names to an invitation to the Governor to address the people at Poplarville. In Jackson County, considerable difficulty was experienced in getting two hundred and thirty names for a similar purpose; while in announcing that the Governor would address the people at Wiggins, Harrison County, on the 10th inst., the number of signers to the invitation was so small that the number was not given. How the mighty have fallen!—Gulfport Advocate.

Just say PARFAY. Everybody is saying it now.

Beer Drinking and Its Effects Upon Human Progeny.

(Colonel L. Mervin Maus, of the U. S. Army Medical Corps.)

Many who denounce ardent spirits, consider beer a wholesome and sustaining food. Beer drinkers are especially liable to fatty and enlarged heart, diseases of the liver and kidneys complicated with dropsy, arteriosclerosis, gout and rheumatism.

The mortality of brewers between the ages of 50 and 60 is about three times as great as that of individuals who follow the ordinary occupations of life. In fact the mortality of liquor dealers and brewery men, with few exceptions, is greater than that of any other occupation. Doctors Bauer and Bollinger, of Munich, report that the beer drinkers' heart in that city causes one death to every sixteen from other diseases. There is a marked contrast in the general appearance and physical condition of the beer drinker at 40 or 50 years of age and the abstainer at the same period of life and almost invariably in favor of the latter.

As a result of the continued use of beer post-mortems disclose a dilated stomach, fatty heart, diseased arteries, liver, kidneys, a yellow adipose deposit under the skin, and general injury to the tissues throughout the system. Graphically speaking, the constitution of the chronic beer drinker is "shot to pieces" at 40 or 50 years of age, and his system may be aptly compared to the condition of a wooden structure in the Philippines, which has been honeycombed by white ants. Insurance companies as a rule refuse this character of risk. A large number of interesting and exhaustive experiments have been made by the most celebrated scientists in Germany, Austria and Scandinavia to determine the effects of alcohol in moderate quantities on the mind, body and heredity. Beer was used in many of these experiments. Voit and Schaeffer found that alcohol neither increases brain energy nor muscular power. Krux and Kraepelin have shown that less than three ounces of alcohol (2 liters of beer) daily for twelve days lessened working capacity from 25 to 40 per cent. Furer tells us that the moderate use of alcohol affects memory and ability to add figures.

Exner has proven that it decreases the rapidity of receiving and sending telegraphic messages. Bager has shown that children who drink one or two glasses of beer daily stand lower in their classes than abstinent children. The effect of alcohol on the human progeny has been one of the most prominent studies of German and Austrian scientists during recent years, the majority of whom have advocated its abandonment, not only on account of its effect on the individual, but on his progeny.

In his address before the Thirteenth International Congress Against Alcoholism at the Hague in 1911, Dr. Wiassak, of Vienna, states that Dr. Roese has statistics to show that 57 per cent of the sons of brewery workmen were unfit for military service. Assuming that the same percentage of the daughters was likewise defective, we have good authority for believing that 57 per cent of the children of brewery workmen of Vienna was mentally or physically defective on account of beer drinking parentage.

The German Ministry of Education recently approved the following notice which has been distributed by certain departments of the Board of Health: "Give your children not a drop of beer! Not a drop of brandy!" And then in detail outlines the effects of the use of beer on parent and child. Professor Hahnel says that 300 of every 1,000 babies are born dead among the Bavarians, the greatest beer drinkers in the world, and that 69,000 of them die annually in the first year of life.

But why submit further evidence on the subject, for has not the German Emperor advised his people, and especially the army, to abstain from beer? Emperor William, in my opinion, is the greatest and wisest ruler that ever occupied the German throne, and certainly has had every opportunity to study the degenerating influences of Germany's national beverage.
